“ My husband Craig and I loved going out for “good eating” and Southern Gospel concerts with John and Linda. A nicer guy you’d never find. He will be missed very much but we rejoice that he’s with his Savior Jesus Christ, who he loved with all his heart. And his love for Linda was obvious and sweet.

“ It is with shock and sadness that I opened the Sunday News this morning to see that my old friend John had passed. I saw his photo before I saw who it was and immediately recognized him. A flood of memories of our time together at Penn State York from 1967 to 1969 came rushing back. Both fresh out of the service, we became fast friends at PSU. I recall driving up to John's family cabin near Woolrich with him in a blinding snowstorm for a weekend, outings at Cowans Gap in Franklin County, and the laughs we shared between classes in front of our classroom building at York Penn State. My first (and last) time on a motorcycle with John was flying across the Columbia-Wrightsville bridge. But most of all, I remember his hearty laugh!

Sadly, like so many youthful friendships, we lost touch in later years, but I never never forgot him. I know he must have had a happy life. He was the most affable, fun-loving man I ever knew and am honored to have known him. That laugh of his! I can hear it now as I write this. Rest in peace old friend. My condolences to John's wife and family. May you find comfort from your happy memories of John
