“ Duran where do I even start, nothing seems to be right..
I can't seem to wrap my head around this as I try so very hard to do.
I am so sorry, I wish I could have been their, I wish I could have stood their arguing with you as I did before, I wish alot of things and one of the biggest is that you be here right now!!
I keep typing and deleting things, I DNT even no where to begin.
I cried Duran, I cried like I never cried before, not even when my mom died did I cry like this.
My heart just hurts, I was going to work and I seen for the 1st time in my life a shooting star. I thought to myself, their you go reading to much into everything!
That morning leaving work, I looked up, seen the most beautiful rainbow I had ever seen in my life, then I knew, your ok, everything will be ok, for a few brief seconds I was ok.
I knew u made it ur in heaven and have enternal peace now, free for all the pain, sickness and suffering.
You always where a free spirit and now you can be. you got your wings my friend, fly high & rest easy

“ My heart is broken as I say goodbye to you Duran. My memories are filled with so many happy memories of you from birth and childhood. I wish as you got older your life would have taken a different path but I will cherish in my heart the many times you reached out to me during your struggle. We went out to eat, sharing laughs and each other's company. Riding in my van sharing stories. Picking out your Christmas gifts together and helping you out when I could. You were kept in my prayers then and now. I had always kept hope that we could change your future and you would be free from this struggle. Now you are finally free, not the way I had hoped for but you are free! I will love and miss you always and will carry you in a special place in my heart forever, my beloved nephew.
