“ I met Jason through his former next door neighbor..David Force. I would visit David quite a lot ..as David and myself would practice guitar together quite a bit ..in the day ... Many an evening Jay would stop over and visit. Jay and David and myself had many interesting conversations over the course of time. I came to know Jason as a friend..through these conversations. I found Jay to be a very likable person...and a person who persisted in life..and did not let life get him down. I saw Jay grow and mature and persevere through the years. His final working position led him to Lancaster Harley Davidson in Willow Street Pa.I for one am VERY PROUD of Jay for achieving the position of service writer there. Jason took ALL the jobs that he has seriously...but took the Harley Job as the most important of all. Jay was a very serious individual...and treated the jobs he's had as an extension of himself and his personal responsibility as a representative of the company he worked for. I am very proud of Jay and the things he accomplished in his seemingly short lifespan. Jay would hold no punches and would call the situations fairly...as he saw them.but still show compassion for people and animals in need. I for one will miss Jay...because he didn't give up on life and kept on keeping on. We will never know how far Jay would have gone in life...but he was headed in the right direction. We don't know why God calls us home when he does...but it's up to us to trust HIM..as to the way HE directs our lives ...When God says your time on this earth is through...its over. We may not continually understand why things happen the way they do...but God who created us knows ultimately what is best for us and loves us and does call the shots as he sees them. Many people will miss Jay and wish he was still with us...but God provides us with all the good memories of him..to comfort us in our time of sorrow as well as need. Thank you Lord for allowing us to have Jason in our lives...for the period of time that you allotted.....Amen

“Freaked out from the crazy wind that nearly blew me into a ditch.... I was about a mile away-maybe less, when I called the service department-Jay answered the phone.... I told him what happened and he asked me if I was okay. He and a co-worker (Greg I believe) picked me up; I rode back to the shop in the truck with Jay. He didn't poke fun or give me a hard time about calling and being so close to the shop....just simply said, "That's what we're here for." I was so thankful for the kindness that was extended and gave them a gift basket a few days later. He said I didn't have to, but I personally needed to show my gratitude. When I last saw him on 7/27 to get my windshield cut down, I asked him about some rubber pieces around the windshield attachment that needed to be replaced.... He jokingly said that they would cost $100.00.... "It's Harley-everything starts at $100.00." I did not know Jay well, but I always appreciated his positive, upbeat personality and the way he made me feel like an important customer, as I'm sure he did with most. My heartfelt condolences to his family, friends, and co-workers. Jay is deeply missed.

“Jay saw me through two motorcycles. When my exhaust bracket broke on my old Sporty (twice) he dialed them up for me to get the replacement part free of charge. The third time it broke I asked if the shop could just weld it. He did that for me himself and for sure it didn't break after that! He joked around with me like an older brother would when I saw him. Was always super fair and honest with me. Will definitely miss seeing him around the events and the shop. My condolences to Jay's family.
