

Teresa M. Wolgemuth

September 27, 2024

Teresa “Terry” Wolgemuth passed into eternity on Friday, September 27, 2024; calmly and without pain after 70 beautiful years on Earth. She was preceded in death by her husband, Robert Wolgemuth, parents Jeannette and Al Leonard, and step-father Richard Scarpato. Terry lives on through her son Daniel Mieloch, step-daughter Brenda Stetler, and her brother Richie Scarpato. Her legacy of kindness, compassion, love, and patience will continue through everyone she met. She was an avid fan of Elton John and the Phillies; music and travel; photos and stories. She saw Elton over 30 times, attended countless Phillies games, dozens of concerts, and traveled the United States and the British Isles, all while capturing memories with thousands of photos. Her careers always reinforced her love of people and making others’ lives better. While we could not honor her request to “put me in a bag and bury me in the backyard,” she had a Green Burial accompanied by a small service with family and close friends. Her inextinguishable hope and optimism made her a beacon of light and we can best serve her memory by being unapologetically kind to everyone we meet. “Give peace a chance.”
